Americans Move West: The Santa Fe Trail

Unit Concepts

- The Santa Fe Trail as a trail of commerce and communication
- Manifest Destiny
- The Santa Fe Trail today

Standards Addressed by This Unit

Geography

Students know how to use and construct maps and other geographic tools to locate and derive information about people, places, and environments. (G1)

Students know physical and human characteristics of places and use this knowledge to define and study regions and their patterns of change. (G2)

History

Students understand the chronological organization of history and know how to organize events and people into major eras to identify and explain historical relationships. (H1)

Students know how to use the processes and resources of historical inquiry. (H2)

Reading and Writing

Students read and understand a variety of materials. (RW1)

Students read and recognize literature as a record of human experience. (RW2)

Introduction

From the time of the landing of Columbus, European powers left their mark on the settlement of the North American continent. The Spanish claimed their domain in the southeast and the west, the English on the eastern seaboard, and the French throughout the continent. As population and knowledge grew, so did the desire and need for more land. It was with this hunger for expansion that many roads were set out across the continent: the Mormon Trail, the Oregon Trail, and the Santa Fe Trail. The Santa Fe Trail was an important route linking the west and the east long before it became famous as the wagon trail from Independence, Missouri, to Santa Fe, New Mexico. The trail thrived as a trade route for 59 years, from 1821 until the last section of railroad line was completed in 1880, but it had been used almost from the time of the Spanish conquest of Mexico in 1521.

When the Spanish settlers began pushing north, the trail now known as the Santa Fe Trail, was first crossed by Europeans. The journey began as early as 1528, when Don Panfilo Narvaez landed in what is now Tampa Bay, Florida. It was his mission to conquer and control a new kingdom. This goal was never realized, but he did send a mission of explorers inland; four of whom survived. Two of these explorers, Alvar Cabeza de Vaca and Esteban (or Estebanico), a Moroccan, were the first to write descriptions of the buffalo, or “humpbacked cow”, and the plains Indians.

The next Europeans on the scene were again Spaniards; Antonio de Mendoza and Francisco Vasquez Coronado. Mendoza was the governor of Northern Mexico and viceroy of New Spain. He had the power to commission expeditions to explore Spain’s newly conquered territory. When Cabeza de Vaca and Esteban arrived in Mexico, Esteban’s grand stories of golden cities and fabulous kingdoms tempted Mendoza. Mendoza and Esteban related the tales to Coronado, who sent Esteban out to find these riches. Esteban traveled as far north as the Zuni pueblos on the lower Rio Grande, and then reported back to Coronado that he had found “the greatest thing in the world,” when in reality he had just found the homes of the Zuni. Coronado, wanting to believe these were the Seven Golden Cities of Cibola, headed north. Meanwhile, Esteban wore out his welcome with the Zuni who proceeded to kill him.

It was in 1540 when Mendoza eventually sent Coronado out with 300 adventurous Spaniards and 800 Indians to conquer this area. With much pomp, circumstance, and dress, the troops set out, but were soon disillusioned. The march to Cibola, or Hawikuh, was hot and difficult. The forces pushed north into what is now Pecos, southeast of Santa Fe, to spend the winter. Here Coronado met El Turco, an Indian from an eastern tribe. El Turco told Coronado that the golden cities he so wanted were farther to the east in a land called Quivira. Coronado probably went as far east as what is now Dodge City, Kansas, crossing the Arkansas River and the future Santa Fe Trail, on this quest doomed to failure. Coronado returned ragged, battered, and empty-handed. He did not know what impact his search for Cibola would have on New Mexico and the Santa Fe Trail.

Many missionaries and explorers came after Coronado, but it was not until 1598, when Don Juan de Oñate conquered New Mexico. In 1609, two years after Jamestown was settled by the English, the capital of New Mexico was moved from a little town on the Rio Grande to Santa Fe. The Spaniards who settled New Mexico knew that more land lay to the east. Long before the Santa Fe Trail came into its heyday, the Spanish saw its potential for trade, as did the settlers in the east. Both the French and the English were drawn to the west, and the Santa Fe Trail was rediscovered from the east.

Implementation Guidelines

It is recommended that this unit be taught in grade 6 with the history of the Western Hemisphere, or in grade 8 to go along with American History and the expansion west. The lessons begin at the knowledge level and continue through to the evaluation level.

Lesson Summary

- Lesson 1      Along the Santa Fe Trail ..... page 5
This is a teacher-directed lesson where students listen to the story A Tree in the Trail. Their listening is directed by a worksheet that they answer as they listen. The students then write a paragraph on the events that shaped the Santa Fe Trail. The teacher also leads discussion and lectures about specifics on the trail.
- Lesson 2      Mapping the Santa Fe Trail ..... page 18
This lesson focuses on a map of the Santa Fe Trail. Students label the map with landmarks and locations, then answer questions based on the map and complete an activity on distances.
- Lesson 3      Cause and Effect Time Line of the Santa Fe Trail 1806-1881 ..... page 27
This lesson requires students to research events concerning the trail and determine the cause and the effects of each.
- Lesson 4      People of the Santa Fe Trail ..... page 31
This lesson focuses on the various people who traveled on the trail. Students use a variety of materials, including encyclopedias, secondary and primary sources, and the Internet, to determine when these people traveled and why.
- Lesson 5      Indians of the Santa Fe Trail ..... page 37
Students view two videos of Indian tribes who were affected by travel on the Santa Fe Trail. Students complete worksheets on the videos and write a compare and contrast essay on how the tribes were affected and reacted.
- Lesson 6      The Santa Fe Trail Today ..... page 46
In this lesson, students use the maps from Lesson 2 to plot the course of the Santa Fe Trail on a current road map. They compare the two routes and create a travel guide.

LESSON 1: Along the Santa Fe Trail

What will students be learning?

STANDARDS

Students will read and understand a variety of materials. (R1)

Students read and recognize literature as a record of human experience. (R6)

BENCHMARKS

Students adjust reading strategies for a variety of purposes.

Students read literature to understand places, people, events, and vocabulary, both familiar and unfamiliar.

OBJECTIVES

Students will be introduced to the Santa Fe Trail by listening to a fictional story about the trail.

Students will record the events of the story.

Students will visualize the events of the story.

SPECIFICS

Through this lesson the students should understand that the Santa Fe Trail had been used as a trail long before any American called it the Santa Fe Trail. In the story A Tree in the Trail, it clearly illustrates that the path traversing the land had been used by American plains Indians long before Europeans landed in the New World. After the arrival of the Spanish, and then the French and English, many explorers and entrepreneurs used the path as well.

What will be done to help students learn this?

INSTRUCTIONAL STRATEGIES

Read aloud

Guided reading/listening

Drawing/visualizing

Discussion

Lecture

PRELIMINARY LESSON PREPARATION

Read the story A Tree in the Trail. Review the topics and the notes for the lecture and discussion. Make copies of the worksheet and writing assignment for the students.

ACTIVITIES

Ask the students who may have witnessed the events in American history. (Obvious answers are people who were alive when the events happened.) Ask the students to imagine what an inanimate object might report about an event (for example, the flag that flew over the capitol as the British sacked Washington in the War of 1812). Continue the discussion by asking such questions as what a river or rock might report on the events that happened during the arrival of settlers in the Ohio Valley or near the Mississippi River.

Lead into the next activity, which is about A Tree in the Trail. Tell the students they will be listening to a story about events surrounding a tree during the settlement of the west. Hand out the worksheets and tell the students that as you read the story, they are to answer the questions on their papers. Read the story, stopping to ask questions for understanding. Show the pictures as you choose, but remember one of the activities later will be for them to draw a picture of the what the plaza at Santa Fe might have looked like when the Americans and Mexicans arrived. Collect their worksheets for grading.

After you have finished the story, have the students write a paragraph about events in the story. Review their paragraphs and collect them for assessment.

Finish the lesson by telling the students they are going to be studying the American settlement of the west and the trails that were used to bring people across the continent, and more specifically the Santa Fe Trail. Tell them that they will be studying the geography and places of the trail, the travelers who crossed the trail, the events that shaped it, the Indians who lived near it, and the Santa Fe Trail today.

ASSESSMENT

Use the following as guides for assessing students' worksheets and writing assignments.

A Tree in the Trail Worksheet — Assessment

For the worksheet, answers 1 through 38 are concrete responses. It is easiest to use a percentage on this portion, and then translate it to a 4 through 1 scale if you prefer that format. For question #39 on the worksheet, where students are asked to draw the scene as the Mexicans and Americans arrive at the plaza in Santa Fe, a rubric of 4 through 1 is more advisable. Use the following criteria for scoring:

Rubric Points	Description
4 .....	The picture includes elements of people, transportation, and types of buildings. The number and types of examples should be varied, but includes at least three or more of each element. The picture is neatly done and the student used color or shadowing to enhance the drawing.
3 .....	The picture includes people, transportation, and types of buildings, but only two of each element are represented. The picture is neatly done and the student used color or shadowing to enhance the drawing.
2 .....	The picture includes people, transportation, and types of buildings, but only one of each element is represented. The picture is fair and the student used some color or shadowing to enhance the drawing.
1 .....	The picture does not include all the elements of people, transportation, or types of buildings. The picture is poor in quality and the student did not use varied techniques in the drawing to enhance its appeal.

Writing Assignment — Assessment

Use the following criteria to assess the writing assignment. Details should include the use of the trail for buffalo hunting, the arrival of the Spanish, use of the trail by the French, and the arrival of the Americans. To receive the full 10 points on details, the student must explain these points clearly.

Element	Points Possible
1. Are sentences complete? .....	2
2. Is the paragraph at least five sentences long? .....	4
3. Is the spelling correct? .....	2
4. Is the punctuation correct?.....	1
5. Is the capitalization correct? .....	1
6. Was the assigned topic addressed?.....	1
7. Do details support the topic? .....	10
8. Is the assignment neatly presented? .....	1

Lecture/Discussion

Based on A Tree in the Trail

Discussion on type of tribe and time frame

These events probably happened sometime in the 1400s before the arrival of the Spanish on the continent. The Kansas tribe was a plains tribe that was semi-sedentary. They had semipermanent settlements to the east. You can contrast this lifestyle to other Indians such as the Eskimo, Inca, Maya, and Iroquois.

Lecture on Coronado

Give the students the information from the introduction about Panfilo Narvaez and Coronado. It will probably be a review for your students from earlier in the year, but reinforce the Spanish exploration of the continent and the settlement of the west. Remind them that while the English were still trying to get a foothold in North America, the Spanish had already become well established. Santa Fe and Jamestown were settled at approximately the same time. Also, have students think about and verbalize again what changes the Europeans would have brought to the Indians, especially the introduction of the horse. Lead the discussion to a comparison of the horse for the plains tribes and a car for a teenager; in both cases, it is a new form of transportation enabling people to travel much farther, much faster.

Discuss the change in the mood of the story

The mood of the story has become more frenzied and violent. Ask the students why they think this is happening. Possible answers are the arrival of foreigners, overcrowding, a new way of living (the horse) and the competition it brought, and fear of the new and unknown.

Lecture about the European control of the continent to 1803

Show the overhead of North America and have the students review where different people had control (French, Spanish, English, American, and Indian). Then review how the Americans gained control of the west through the Louisiana Purchase. The Louisiana Purchase was precipitated by President Jefferson's fear of the French occupation of New Orleans. He sent his minister, Robert Livingston, to France to purchase New Orleans and West Florida. Napoleon agreed to sell the land to the United States in 1803, and as a result the United States gained the land west of the Mississippi to the Rocky Mountains, more than doubling the size of the nation.

Lecture on "raton" meaning mouse in Spanish

What other names in the Southwest did we get from the Spanish (Colorado, Mesa Verde, Pueblo, Las Cruces, Rio Grande)?

Writing Assignment: The Santa Fe Trail (based on A Tree in the Trail)

Due: _____

Write a paragraph with the following topic sentence. Your paragraph should be at least five sentences long. Write in complete sentences using correct spelling, capitalization, and punctuation. Make sure your points support the topic. Use information from A Tree in the Trail and any outside sources you need to support your ideas. Cite your sources with endnotes.

Topic Sentence:
Many events shaped the Santa Fe Trail.

Your assignment will be graded on the following elements. A total of 25 points is possible.

Element	Points Possible
1. Are sentences complete? .....	2
2. Is the paragraph at least five sentences long? .....	4
3. Is the spelling correct? .....	2
4. Is the punctuation correct?.....	1
5. Is the capitalization correct? .....	1
6. Was the assigned topic addressed? .....	1
7. Do details support the topic? .....	10
8. Is the assignment neatly presented? .....	1
9. Were endnotes used correctly? .....	3
TOTAL	25

LESSON 2: Mapping the Santa Fe Trail

What will students be learning?

STANDARDS

Students know how to use and construct maps and other geographic tools to locate and derive information about people, places, and environments. (G1)

Students know the physical and human characteristics of places and use this knowledge to define and study regions and their patterns of change. (G2)

BENCHMARKS

Students know how to use maps and other geographic tools to acquire, process, and report information from a spatial perspective.

Students know how and why people define regions.

OBJECTIVES

Students will identify trails that brought Americans west.

Students will locate places and landmarks along the Santa Fe Trail.

Students will learn the pros and cons of taking the different routes of the Santa Fe Trail.

SPECIFICS

There were several trails that headed west, bringing Americans to settle there. The Mormon Trail led settlers out of Illinois into Utah. The Oregon Trail brought people from the crowded east into the uncharted territory of Oregon and then down into California.

The Santa Fe Trail was a unique trail that served many purposes. The Santa Fe Trail was first used by Indians for buffalo hunting. Then the early Spanish explorers used the trail in search of gold and other riches. It was also used by French fur traders and mountain men.

In the 1820s, the trail opened as a road of commerce between the United States and Mexico with William Becknell's historic, as well as lucrative, trip into Santa Fe. Although the trail had been used for centuries, first by the Indians and then by the Spanish and other European mountain men, this was the first time the trail had been used successfully by Americans to trade with New Mexico. When Becknell reached Santa Fe he was welcomed by the Mexicans rather than arrested like those who came before him. Trade along the trail lasted for about six decades, and in that time it was a trail of commerce, a supply line for the U.S. Army, a mail route, and a road for adventurers, gold seekers, settlers, and many others. It was a cultural link between Mexico and the Old World ideas of colonial empires and the United States and the New World ideas of democracy. It was also a road that led to the destruction for the plains Indians' way of life.

What will be done to help students learn this?

INSTRUCTIONAL STRATEGIES

Lecture

Note taking

Mapping

PRELIMINARY LESSON PREPARATION

Review the story A Tree in the Trail. Also review details about the Oregon Trail and the Mormon Trail. Obtain a map from the 1820s to the 1860s that shows the California, Oregon, and Mormon Trails. Make copies of the map and worksheets (which include a map of the Santa Fe Trail) for students.

ACTIVITIES

Begin a discussion by asking students to remember places that were mentioned. Ask them why landmarks were so important to travelers going west. Review chapter 23 in A Tree in the Trail, and lead a discussion regarding Jed Simpson's decision about which route to take.

Tell the students that in this lesson they will be mapping the sites of the Santa Fe Trail. On the map, have students label the trail shown and fill in the dates of operation as you lecture briefly about the trail. Use The Story of America to refresh any details about the trails. Then have the students do the site location activity and the worksheet.

RESOURCES/MATERIALS

A Tree in the Trail

The Story of America

Commerce of the Prairies

Class sets of maps and road atlases

Copies of the mapping activity and extension activity worksheets for students

ASSESSMENT

Use the following rubric assessment to evaluate the students' work for the mapping activity.

Rubric Points	Description
4 .....	The map is neat in appearance. The trail and cities are clearly marked in black as indicated in the directions. At least 18 of the 22 locations are identified and labeled correctly on the map.
3 .....	The map is neat in appearance. The trail and cities are clearly marked in black as indicated in the directions. At least 16 of the 22 locations are identified and labeled correctly on the map.
2 .....	The map is poorly done and not indicative of appropriate grade-level work. The trail or the cities are marked in black, however some of the locations may not be in the appropriate area. Only 14 locations have been identified and labeled on the map.
1 .....	The map is below grade-level acceptable work. The trail is not marked and the cities are difficult to identify. Only 12 locations have been identified and labeled on the map.
0 .....	The map is unacceptable and well below grade-level work. Less than 12 locations have been identified on the map. The student will be required to redo the activity.

Use the Teacher's Copy of the Santa Fe Trail Mapping Activity to check for correct answers and completeness of the fill-in-the-blank activity.

The Santa Fe Trail Mapping Activity

After you are done labeling the map answer the following questions.

1. What are natural landmarks?
streams, rivers, hills, mountains, large rocks, etc.
2. Why were they important (are important) to travelers?
They provided markers on an unmarked highway.

Now complete the following paragraph:

The eastern end of the trail began in Independence, Missouri along the Missouri River. In eastern Kansas, and into Colorado the trail followed the Arkansas River. The traders who followed this route followed the Mountain Route. It crossed the Colorado-New Mexico border at Raton Pass. Other travelers took a shorter route along the Cimarron River then into the panhandle of Oklahoma and then into New Mexico. The southern routes divided at the Caches, the more northerly route was known as the Wet Route and the more southerly, the Dry Route. Council Grove was an important campground on the Neosho River. There were many forts built along the routes including Fort Dodge, Fort Leavenworth, and Fort Larned which was located near the intersection of the Wet and Dry Routes. Bent's Fort was a trading post located on the Mountain Route. The trail landmark, Wagon Mound, is east of Fort Union near the Canadian River. Pawnee Rock is a famous landmark in Kansas near the big bend of the Arkansas River. Chouteau's Island washed away many years ago. It was west of the Caches, and named for a French trapper.

LESSON 3:

Cause and Effect Time Line of the Santa Fe Trail 1806-1881

What will students be learning?

STANDARDS

Students understand the chronological organization of history and know how to organize events and people into major eras to identify and explain historical relationships. (H1)

BENCHMARK

Students use chronology to organize historical events and people.

OBJECTIVES

Students will identify the major reasons for each of the events affecting the Santa Fe Trail.
Students will identify the effects of each event.

Students will use a variety of research materials to learn about these events.

SPECIFICS

Once Americans began to push west the prevailing thought was that it was a God-given destiny that the United States would expand to its natural boundaries — the Pacific Coast, the Gulf of Mexico, and even farther north. In 1845, John L. O’Sullivan wrote, “It is our manifest destiny to overspread the continent allotted to us by Providence for the free development of our yearly multiplying millions.” This belief led to the idea among most Americans that nothing or no one should stand in their way, which in turn led to the addition of vast new territories, wealth, and landscape features to the United States. This lesson should focus on the ideas of Manifest Destiny and how the events listed played a major part in this idea.

What will be done to help students learn this?

INSTRUCTIONAL STRATEGIES

Research

Class discussion

Cause and effect

PRELIMINARY LESSON PREPARATION

Gather American history resource materials for students to use. Recommended resource materials are any American history texts written on various reading levels depending on your students reading levels, encyclopedias, picture books with captions, etc. Read the chapter “El Viagero Pike” in The Santa Fe Trail by Duffus to get a clear picture of Pike’s feelings about exploring the west and Manifest Destiny. Be sure to discuss with the class the concept of cause and effect, making sure they understand that many times in history there is more than one cause or one effect of an event. Make copies of the time line worksheet.

ACTIVITIES

Students should use resource books to complete the causes and effects of the events listed on the time line.

ASSESSMENT

Use the following rubric assessment to evaluate the students work for the map activity. This activity is higher-level thinking, so allow students some latitude in your evaluation.

Rubric Points	Description
4 .....	The student has completed eight (8) of the cause and effect boxes correctly. The answers may vary slightly, yet if the general idea is there, give credit to the student.
3 .....	The student has completed six (6) of the cause and effect boxes correctly. The answers may vary slightly, yet if the general idea is there, give credit to the student.
2 .....	The student has completed four (4) of the cause and effect boxes correctly. The answers may vary slightly, yet if the general idea is there, give credit to the student.
1 .....	The student has shown little effort in completing the assignment and has answered less than four (4) boxes correctly. Review with the student the cause and effect concept and allow for a redo assignment.

Santa Fe Trail Time Line

Complete the time line showing cause and effect of each event.

Cause	Event	Effect
France/Napolean needed money	1803 The Louisiana Purchase	Land added to the United States
Louisiana Purchase	1806 Zebulon Pike goes into New Mexico	Pike was arrested, taken to Santa Fe and then Chihuahua. Assessed the situation as to future trading
Desire for self rule	1810-1821 Mexican Independence	Mexicans look for new trade partners, settlers
Becknell had financial problems	1821 William Becknell first trades in New Mexico	Went back to Missouri with many times his initial investment, more wanted to go west to make their fortune.
Desire for quicker route	1822 William Becknell takes the Cimarron Route	People now had two routes to choose from
Indian attacks	1827 Fort Leavenworth established	More Americans in west; exposure to vast lands; increased Indian tensions
Indian attacks	1829 U.S. troops escort trains on the trail	Increase trade, security, military
Need for meeting place	1835 Bent's Fort opened	Provided a venue for cultural and material exchanges between Indians, mountain men, etc.
American settlement in Western territory	1846-1848 Mexican-American War	Addition of the southwest to the U.S.
U.S. entered Santa Fe	1846 Colonel Stephen Watts Kearny took control of Santa Fe	Land became effectively the U.S.
Discovery of gold	1849 California Gold Rush Mail service to New Mexico	Massive immigration into New Mexico
Expansion of railroad	1880 The AT&SF Railroad reaches New Mexico	Santa Fe Trail fades into history

LESSON 4: People of the Santa Fe Trail

What will students be learning?

STANDARD

Students know how to use the processes and resources of historical inquiry. (H2)

BENCHMARKS

Students know how to formulate questions and hypotheses regarding what happened in the past and to obtain and analyze historical data to answer questions and test hypotheses.

Students know how to interpret and evaluate primary and secondary sources of historical information.

OBJECTIVES

Students will identify travelers on the Santa Fe Trail and the reasons for their travels.

Students will visualize events on the trail.

Students will graph data on trading in Santa Fe of non-Hispanics and Hispanics.

SPECIFICS

Commercial traffic along the Santa Fe Trail began long before the official opening of the trail by William Becknell. Remember that in A Tree in the Trail, travel began as far back as the Indian hunters of the plains. There were many people from adventure seekers to merchants to wives who traveled along the path. Each person had his or her own reason for traveling.

What will be done to help students learn this?

INSTRUCTIONAL STRATEGIES

Reading

Time line

Research

Teacher-led discussion

PRELIMINARY LESSON PREPARATION

Gather resource books for the students to use. Many are listed in the Instructional Materials and Resources section of this unit. Make copies of the chronology chart and Traders of the Santa Fe Trail worksheet for students.

ACTIVITIES

Pair the students into learning groups. Discuss various reasons people travel in general. Tie this into the same being true for the Santa Fe Trail. Then have the students organize the list of people who traveled the trail into chronological order and record the reasons they were traveling. After the groups have completed this activity, each student should choose one individual to draw a scene fitting, "A Day in the Life of a Trail Traveler."

The next activity will require the teacher to take 1860's and 1870's census information from Appendix 3 and 4 of Los Capitalistas by Boyle. Students will compile the information into tables comparing the information. Then they should construct graphs for each category. These graphs will facilitate a discussion as to the age of the traders, their net wealth, and their recorded occupations.

ASSESSMENT

Use the following rubric to assess the Travelers on the Santa Fe Trail worksheet. Three areas on the worksheet can be graded: chronological order, dates, and reason for travel. Chronological order and dates coincide with one another, and reason for travel may be slightly different than the answers provided on the Teacher's Copy.

Chronology and Dates:

Rubric Points	Description
4 .....	At least nine (9) of the dates and chronological order numbers are correct.
3 .....	At least eight (8) of the dates and chronological order numbers are correct.
2 .....	At least six (6) of the dates and chronological order numbers are correct.
1 .....	More than five (5) of the dates and chronological order numbers are incorrect and need to be corrected. Allow the student to try the assignment again for a higher score.

Reasons for Travel:

Rubric Points	Description
4 .....	At least nine (9) of the reasons for travel are similar (within reason) to the Teacher's Copy answer.
3 .....	At least eight (8) of the reasons for travel are similar (within reason) to the Teacher's Copy answer.
2 .....	At least six (6) of the reasons for travel are similar (within reason) to the Teacher's Copy answer.
1 .....	More than five (5) of reasons for travel are incorrect or simply not filled out. Discuss with the student (one-on-one) the concept of having a reason to travel.

LESSON 5: Indians of the Santa Fe Trail

What will students be learning?

STANDARD

Students know how to use the processes and resources of historical inquiry. (H2)

BENCHMARK

Students apply knowledge of the past to compare and contrast present-day issues and events from multiple, historically objective perspectives.

OBJECTIVE

Students will identify the different ways the Comanche and Apache responded to American settlement of the west.

SPECIFICS

There were many Indian tribes living in the area west of the Mississippi who were affected by the movement along the Santa Fe Trail: the Osage, Kansas, Pawnee, Kiowa, Kiowa-Apache, Comanche, Jicarilla-Apache, Ute, and many others. Some of the tribes were peaceful and accepting of the Americans moving west, while many others posed a serious threat to the wagon trains that moved through.

Of the Indians the travelers encountered, some were sedentary tribes, such as the Kansas and Osage, who lived in permanent homes made of earth or wood and animal skins. They grew crops such as corn, beans, and squash, which they supplemented with buffalo and other meats. The Osage and Kansas both signed treaties with the United States to ensure the safety of the American travelers.

As the travelers continued west, they encountered the nomadic Comanches, Kiowas, Cheyennes, Arapaho, and Apache. These tribes hunted buffalo, which was their main source of food, on a regular basis near the Santa Fe Trail. As the Santa Fe trade grew, so did the conflicts between these Indians and the Americans. The traders encroached on the hunting ground of the Indians, and the clash of cultures ultimately ended in violence.

LESSON 6: The Santa Fe Trail Today

What will students be learning?

STANDARDS

Students know how to use and construct maps and other geographic tools to locate and derive information about people, places, and environments. (G1)

Students know how to use the processes and resources of historical inquiry. (H2)

BENCHMARKS

Students know how to use maps and other geographic tools to acquire, process, and report information from a spatial perspective.

Students apply knowledge of the past to compare and contrast present-day issues and events from multiple, historically objective perspectives.

OBJECTIVES

Students will identify the Santa Fe Trail along today's highways.

Students will name modern towns through which the trail would have gone. Students will compare distances of the two trails.

Students will compare hazards and roadblocks that would be present in the 1800s and today.

SPECIFICS

Today the Santa Fe Trail is a national historic trail with many landmarks and historical sites. In 1976, the Daughters of the American Revolution secured federal funds to remark the sites of the trail. Today, people can relive the glory days of the trail by visiting the sites. By plotting the trail along a modern highway map, students will become much more aware, and hopefully enthusiastic, about the sites.

What will be done to help students learn this?

INSTRUCTIONAL STRATEGIES

Mapping

Research

PRELIMINARY LESSON PREPARATION

Obtain road maps of the United States. Make copies of the writing assignment for students.

ACTIVITIES

Using their first map of the Santa Fe Trail (from Lesson 2), have the students compare the route of the trail with today's highways. Have them trace the trail along the highways. As they are tracing the route on a modern road map, have them mark the towns through which it passes. Discuss the comparison of the distances. Discuss hazards present in the 1800s with hazards of today. Discuss which were more dangerous and why. Then assign students to prepare a vacation guide for the Santa Fe Trail. Use the assignment sheet included.

RESOURCES/MATERIALS

Highway maps of the United States

ASSESSMENT

Road Map Activity — Assessment

Use the following rubric to assess the road map activity. Students should mark the highway map by locating and labeling sites and then connecting the dots. In many areas, the route drawn will parallel modern highways.

Rubric Points	Description
4 .....	Between seven and 10 sites are marked in each of the following states: Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, and New Mexico.
3 .....	Either five or six sites are marked in each of the following states: Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, and New Mexico.
2 .....	Either three or four sites are marked in each of the following states: Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, and New Mexico.
1 .....	Only one or two sites are marked in each of the following states: Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, and New Mexico.

Writing Assignment: Santa Fe Trail Vacation Guide

DUE: _____

Design a vacation guide for a Santa Fe Trail. Include the following in your guide: the location of departure, stops along the way, roads to be taken, and round-trip mileage. Also include a minimum of three historic sites and their locations, and what the sites offer to tourists. These sites can be museums, historic houses, the trail itself, or any place you think would be interesting. Your guide should be neatly done and appealing to a prospective traveler. It should include pictures, illustrations, and maps as enhancements. Use correct spelling, grammar, and punctuation.

Your assignment will be graded on the following elements. A total of 100 points is possible.

Element	Points Possible
1. Does the guide include the departure point? .....	5
2. Does it include points to stop along the way? .....	10
3. Does it include roads to be traveled? .....	10

UNIT ASSESSMENT

How will students demonstrate proficiency?

PERFORMANCE TASK

Have students choose between two options — write a research paper or create a historical journal — and then complete the activity.

Option 1: Research Paper on Manifest Destiny-American Expansion

Students are to write a research paper to include the following:

- correctly constructed title page;
- five-paragraph essay;
- clearly stated thesis statement of their own creation;
- a minimum of five quotes with correctly formatted endnotes;
- use of at least one of each kind of supporting material (expert opinion, statistics, real examples);
- use at least three types of sources (textbook, novel, encyclopedia, periodical);
- at least one map, graph, or illustration with a caption;
- correct spelling, punctuation, and sentence construction; and
- correctly formatted page of works cited.

SUGGESTED TOPICS

- The Santa Fe Trail
- Mountain Men Who Used the Santa Fe Trail
- American Merchants of the Santa Fe Trail
- Indians Displaced by the Santa Fe Trail
- Medicines Used on the Santa Fe Trail
- Myths and Legends of the Trail
- Routes of the Santa Fe Trail

Option 2: Create a Historical Journal

Pretend you are traveling west on the Santa Fe Trail sometime between 1821 and 1881. Select one of the following projects to document or illustrate your travels:

- Write a journal with a minimum of 10 entries.
- Illustrate a journal with a minimum of six captioned illustrations.
- Prepare a tape with a minimum of three oral histories.
- Compose a spiritual or folksong commemorating your trip (both music and lyrics).

Your project must be as historically accurate as possible. You may wish to make your paper appear old, write with a historical tool or in a historical script, use Indian symbols, speak in historically correct dialect, or illustrate scenes that reflect the appropriate time and place. Whichever project you choose, it must provide dates and places.

ASSESSMENT

Option 1: Research Paper — Assessment

Rubric points	Description
4 .....	The paper is correctly formatted, has a correctly constructed title page and correctly formatted bibliography. The paper has a clearly written thesis statement with supporting material. There is a minimum of five work citations used correctly throughout the paper. The student uses correct spelling, punctuation and sentence construction. There is a map, graph, or illustration to enhance the paper.
3 .....	The paper is correctly formatted, has a correctly constructed title page and correctly formatted bibliography. The paper has a clearly written thesis statement with supporting material. There is a minimum of three work citations used correctly throughout the paper. There is a maximum of three errors in spelling, punctuation, and sentence construction. There is a map, graph, or illustration to enhance the paper.
2 .....	The paper is correctly formatted, has a correctly constructed title page and correctly formatted bibliography. The paper has a thesis statement, but it may not be clear or not well-supported. There is a minimum of two work citations used correctly throughout the paper. There is a maximum of six errors in spelling, punctuation, and sentence construction. There is a map, graph, or illustration to enhance the paper.
1 .....	The paper is correctly formatted, has a correctly constructed title page and correctly formatted bibliography. The paper has a vague thesis statement, or none at all, and is not well-supported. There is a minimum of one work citation used correctly in the paper. There is a maximum of 12 errors in spelling, punctuation, and sentence construction. There is a map, graph, or illustration to enhance the paper.

Option 2: Historical Journal — Assessment

Rubric points	Description
4 .....	The journal/song is based on the required situation. The project contains the required number of entries. The project is historically correct. The project is creatively presented.
3 .....	The journal/song is based on the required situation. The project contains no less than 80 percent of the required number of entries. The project is historically correct. The project is creatively presented.
2 .....	The journal/song is based on the required situation. The project contains no less than 70 percent of the required number of entries. The project is somewhat historically correct. The project is creatively presented.
1 .....	The journal/song is based on the required situation. The project contains less than 60 percent of the required number of entries. The project is not historically correct. The project is plainly presented.

Annotated Bibliography

Books

Alter, Judy. The Santa Fe Trail. New York: The Children's Press, 1998.

This book provides very basic information about the Santa Fe Trail. It is written at a lower reading level and is therefore excellent for younger readers.

Boyle, Susan Calafate. Los Capitalistas. Albuquerque, NM: University of New Mexico Press, 1997.

This is an essential text, providing information about traders along the Santa Fe Trail. It includes traders' perceptions about the different cultures encountered.

Duffus, R.L. The Santa Fe Trail. Albuquerque, NM: University on New Mexico Press, 1999.

This book provides a history of the Santa Fe Trail. Originally published in 1930, it is considered to be a standard work on the trail. It is fun and easy to read and provides a basic time line of the Santa Fe Trail, but it is for adult readers.

Gregg, Josiah. Commerce of the Prairies. Norman, OK: University of Oklahoma Press, 1954.

This is an essential text for information about what was traded along the Santa Fe Trail. It includes commodities, amounts, prices, and much more.

Holling, Clancy. A Tree in the Trail. Boston: Houghton Mifflin Company, 1970.

This is a fabulous book for introducing the Santa Fe Trail. It chronicles the life of a tree from the time a young Indian boy discovers it, to its demise or rebirth as you may look at it. It will take a class period to read it, but it will hook the students.

Magoffin, Susan Shelby. Down the Santa Fe Trail and into New Mexico. Edited by Stella M. Drumm. Lincoln, NE: University of Nebraska Press, 1982.

This book is the diary of Susan Shelby Magoffin, long thought to be the first American woman to cross the Santa Fe Trail.

Simmons, Marc. Along the Santa Fe Trail. Albuquerque, NM: University of New Mexico Press, 1986.

This illustrated book gives a contemporary view of the Santa Fe Trail. It has many references to diaries, journals, and newspaper accounts of the trail in its heyday. It is easy to read and an excellent resource for teaching about the Santa Fe Trail.

Videos

Schlessinger Media. The Apache. Indians of North America Video Collection, September, 1993.

This video provides an introduction to the history and culture of the Apache Indians.

Schlessinger Media. The Comanche. Indians of North America Video Collection, September, 1993.

This video focuses on the history and culture of the Comanche Indians.

About the Author

Leni Arnett was born in Denver, Colorado, and raised in the mountain town of Dillon, in the heart of the Colorado ski country. Being at the crossroads both in geography and time, Leni encountered many different people and ideas that shaped her goals of working with a diverse group of people. After graduating from Summit County High School, Leni moved to Boulder, Colorado, to pursue an education in anthropology. She graduated from the University of Colorado with a bachelor's degree in anthropology and archeology. Her focus in anthropology was on Latin America and the southwest United States.

Leni has worked for the Denver Public Schools since 1984. Her first assignment was at Cole Middle School, which she found to have a wealth of diversity. However, after her first eight years of teaching she became restless and yearned to try something new. It was in 1992 that she made a short-lived career change, working with a neurologist. It didn't take long for her to realize that her true calling was in teaching, and she returned to the classroom in 1995.

She has spent 12 of her 13 teaching years in the middle school, and is now working in both middle and high school in the unique setting of the Denver School of the Arts. She teaches geography and American history, integrating the arts and academics.
